

Visualize Whirled Peas

As far as Israel goes, I cannot, for the life of me, determine from any news source exactly what is going on. I am all for Israel defending its country. But I am not certain that that is always what is going on. The media is completely convoluted on the subject of Israel and the Jewish state. I wish I could give an informed opinion. I do believe that Israel has been fired upon by missiles. But Judaism is a paternalistic religion and holds no room for the feminine aspect of the divine. It is only fair that if Islam can be represented in Jerusalem, so too should Wicca and other Goddess faiths.

The prophets of the Bible talked a great deal about the destruction of Jerusalem. I fear it is coming, because Israel most likely will not stand for letting foreigners divide the country like that. In Revelation, it talks about how God will rebuild the city, and I believe it says somewhere in that book that He will do it in three days.

Another thing that doesn't impress me is the Republicans were circulating a petition back in 2011 that for a mere $175 they will flood every congressman and heads of states and other politicians and such. That's just as evil as a democrat backing the proposition to divide the capital of Israel in the first place. People tripping over their own feet to stand in the way of justice.....

I feel like all this controversy and press about the budget is a huge distraction from this issue. A deliberate misdirection on the part of the government. Michael Moore says the government "is not broke." He is right.

This is just plain total hypocrisy. I have never understood why the U.S. government makes decisions for other countries that it would never tolerate being imposed upon it by others. I mean, here, we make a huge deal about the 9/11 tragedy. Now, don't get me wrong, it certainly was a tragedy, but places like Ireland and Israel, and other countries trying to find genuine freedom put up with attacks like that one every single day.....

See, I don't understand why people feel that their families are more important than other people. How can we break down color lines, bridge religious chasms, or end prejudice if people continually put their own before everyone else? Children are equally important to God... I've met a lot of minorities who put their families, and people of their own race before everyone else, yet they are intolerant of white people putting their families first.... It is so necessary for everyone to go out on a limb a bit and care. I mean, actually care about other people in the world.

Someone said to me, he couldn't see why any military person should die for one woman's right to vote. I almost said to him, "women die in childbirth to boy children all the time around the world."

Now I am not denying that we all have special responsibility to our own children. There is nobody who will pick up the slack for any parent out there. But, it is important to keep in mind that your children are not more important than other people's kids. Some things, like child molestation (or child abuse), are everyone's business. I am glad that some people are taking a stand against the plague of child abuse that hangs over the whole Muslim nation. That may not be the reason some people are over there fighting -- some people may think it is about oil, and they might be right to some degree. But I refuse to believe everybody is corrupt.

So, in 1 John 4:8 it says "God is love."

My God and Goddess are those of love. I've been studying, a little bit, the ancient Goddesses of Love. One night I was laying in bed and a woman's voice spoke to me. I don't remember Her words, but I asked who she was and she said "Venus."

To me, the Spirit is love itself. Love has no gender.

The God and Goddess are part of Spirit. The Divine feminine is very real to me. The God and Goddess definitely have a gender.

A lot of the mythology says that the Goddess was promiscuous. Somehow I doubt that. I don't think Christians are entirely off in promoting chastity and such. Sex without love is a sin because it does us no good at all. It causes us pain. Essentially, my understanding of sins is they are those things that will ultimately hurt us in the long run.

I believe the Goddess let Her religions go underground precisely because of that misunderstanding. With my understanding of the average male human, many of them were lusting after Her and quite possibly making stuff up about having slept with Her. The priestesses were often victimized by just such lust. Men in lust with the Goddess would use the priestesses for sexual release, etc. I imagine rape and sexual abuse of the priestesses was rampant and widespread.

In Christianity, cheap sex is at best, frowned upon.

Christianity is not the only religion in the world that is wrong, either. The Spirit wants the sacredness kept in this act of creation.

White Buffalo Calf Woman -- a female deity figure of the Lakota -- caused a man to explode (spontaneously combust) because he embraced her without invitation and with lust.

Whether or not you believe in the devil, he was thrown out of Heaven because he took this concept a step further and wanted to have sex with little children. Like most sexual predators, he is power hungry, involved in politics and is deceptive in his "playfulness." It is sort of true he was kicked out because he was power hungry and thought he was better than God, but it was because he wanted to victimize children. He still does through his followers. He takes the sacredness out of creation -- or tries anyhow. Many predators, whether they announce it or not, follow the devil around. He is also a "cannibal" -- wanting to consume humans. I put cannibal in quotes because technically he isn't the same species we are, but still....

The religions that promote this kind of behavior are the wrong ones in my book. I found out about Muslim Sharia law and was deeply disturbed by it. It allows men to marry little girls and consummate the marriage by the time the "wife" is nine years old. There is indeed a big threat to life on Earth by these people and those in that religion that follow that law.

Thus, I have peace with this war in the Middle East. Perhaps they are killing some women over there, but it is older women that carve up the genitals of little girls to circumcise them.

I'm okay with the religion of the Goddess going underground. We may never all agree, but we can have peace with people in many religions, as long as we realize that most people have pieces of the truth. It is totally unnecessary for Christians and Pagans to completely cut themselves off from each other.

Jesus said he was not bringing peace, but a sword. People are so busy fighting over Jesus' existence, we are not facing the real threat -- that of predators. So many people are in denial that they exist, yet I have met many, many survivors of childhood sexual abuse. I was begging the archangel Michael to just kill the devil for a long, long time, instead of waiting for the "End of the World." Revelation does not have to come fully true. I really believe that it does not. Behind most wars and family feuds and broken families you will find a predator or two....

Sometimes love means taking sides and protecting the innocent from the guilty.

I believe world peace is possible. The Lakota call White Buffalo Calf Woman the Lady of Peace. What would She do?

Instead of WWJD, What would the Lady do?

Lamentations 1:1

How deserted lies the city, once so full of people!

*How like a widow is she,
who once was great among the nations!
She who was queen among the provinces has now become a slave.*

*2: Bitterly she weeps at night,
tears are on her cheeks.
Among all her lovers
there is no one to comfort her.
All her friends have betrayed her;
they have become her enemies.*